

2.5.2 - Does your university as a body provide events for local farmers and food producers to connect and transfer knowledge?

To improve communication and spread information about agricultural goods and food production, Imam Ja'afar Al-Sadiq University arranges courses and events for nearby farmers and food producers. The Imam Ja'afar Al-Sadiq University also suggests initiatives and organizes university events to help local farmers and food producers market their goods at bazaars. Teachers, students, and locals can connect professionally while deepening their grasp of the region's agricultural goods at these events.

